

Index

Foreword ( Guido Alpa )	11
In lieu of a Preface	17
1. Observing from changing angles	23
Character and identity – do they change with time?	23
Re-making or understanding one's 'self'	26
The optical angle chosen for the assessment	28
The role of the teacher	33
Intellectual duality	35
Character changing events	37
Forgiveness and revenge	41
Preparation for adversity	42
Themes explored by this book	44
2. Living in different cities: Athens, Austin, Cambridge, Ithaca, N.Y., Ghent, Leiden, Munich, Oxford, Paris, Siena	47
Changing views	47
Hubris and Nemesis	49
The Greek duality	52
The changing USA	57
Wondrous Bavaria	66
I love Paris	71
The Italian ancestry	74
The cultural openness of the Low Countries	76
Combining the best	78
3. Schooling, the Oxbridge gem and the world of intellectuals	81
Education in Greece: cramming facts v. analysis – School	81
Cramming facts v. analysis (continued): the University	84
Moving to another world	88

The dazzling propaganda jewels of England: Cambridge and Oxford	90
A simplified glance at the growth of these two pearls	91
Speculating about the future of such centres of learning	97
The world of intellectuals	99
4. Style, manners, generosity, humour and wit, family, intellectuals and character	105
Style	105
Manners	108
Generosity	110
Humour and wit	112
Character	115
Where do all these contradictory attitudes stem from?	120
Family	133
5. Sex and sexual standing and apparel:
Complexities behind a very natural human urge	137
The Mediterranean peacock	137
Wives and meaningful others	141
The male predominance in the Mediterranean world	142
Male dominance in legal matters	142
Sexual liberty and prowess	143
The reality: female weakness was often removed or minimized through the back door	146
Female education, employment (and unemployment), pay inequality and their consequences on brining up children	148
A glance at the USA	152
Apparel and appearance	155
Dressing the body as a way of projecting an image	156
6. A different way of thinking and a different way of writing	161
7. Greece and the Greeks as seen by the British	185
8. Refugees and exiles, émigrés and expatriates, metics and dual citizens. Characters, enhanced visions, distorting factors	203
Who may be possessed of “double” or enhanced vision?	203

Why the above categories matter?	205
Burdened émigrés – an English and American example	209
Sir Isaiah Berlin	212
Felix Frankfurter	216
Dual citizens, dual visions, dual values and making choices	219
The advantages of a double and sharpened vision of life given only to true “outsiders”	223
Discovering similarities	225
Writing, the poor substitute to acting	229
9. North, South, East and West: Never the Twain shall Meet?	233
Big problems in search for new answers	233
Extending the co-operation within the whole of Europe
The European disunity	234
Divide in order to regroup	238
Energy again, this time in the North	243
Within the new sub-divisions a greater esprit de corps must prevail	244
The rejuvenation of the two (new) halves will work only if economic reform is aided by a less adventurous foreign and defense policy	247
What about other differences?	250
Other changes which are pushing European countries closer together	256
Other factors which will continue to encourage convergence	260
A postscript on academic lawyers that made an impression on me	263
Czech Republic	263
England	264
France	265
The Germanic world	265
Israel	266
Italy	266
The Low Countries (Belgium, the Netherlands)	266
USA	267